Safety Training for the Entire Industry

The construction industry's web-based and no-cost safety training – safeconstructiontraining.se - is the introductory training course for the entire industry within the field of work environment. As of 1 July 2021, a passing test score from the training course is a requirement for all those operating at work sites where Swedish Construction Federation member companies serve as employers or are responsible for the coordination of the working environment. A passing test score is valid for five years.

Representatives of companies in the building trade have agreed that safety and work environment shall be prioritised and that the work in raising the general level of safety shall continue. Therefore, the training course has been widely established throughout the industry and has been developed by the Swedish Construction Federation in consultation with both small and large construction and civil engineering companies.

Having a training course common to the entire trade offers several advantages:

- One industry-wide standard with a common perspective on work environment issues
- A common minimum acceptable skill level needed for operating at Swedish construction sites

- Increased cost efficiency, thanks to the introductory training applying to everyone
- Clearer and simpler management for customers and all contractors involved
- Increased clarity and simplicity for suppliers and smaller operators in the industry

Of course, the training can be supplemented with company or object-specific safety introductions or intra-company advanced training courses within work environment and safety.

The administrator and training provider is the building trade's training centre known as Bygghansens Utbildningscenter or BUC, which is a part of the Swedish Construction Federation.

In addition to Swedish and English, the training is available in 8 other languages.

No-cost registration in the ID06 Competence Database

The database stores training certificates, among them Safe Construction Training for persons with ID06 cards. The Swedish Construction Federation covers the cost of registration in the ID06 Competence Database.
